PRESS RELEASE | New publication: Søren Kierkegaard theatre philosophy essays – An essay on four Danish actors

The four are Anna Nielsen, known for her strong presence, Joachim Ludvig Phister, who mastered character, Christen Niemann Rosenkilde, whose charisma brought roles to life, and Jørgen Christian Hansen, who was known for his versatility – they are all analyzed through Kierkegaard's unique, philosophical lens.

In the four theatre philosophy essays, Søren Kierkegaard philosophizes about the four actors' abilities to portray a mature woman, a prostitute and a seducer, respectively.

In Søren Kierkegaard's essay on the actress Anna Nielsen, he praises her ability to portray the mature woman.

He praises the actor Joachim Ludvig Phister for his ability to portray a prostitute in a song.

Drunkenness is also the theme of Søren Kierkegaard's essay on the actor Christen Niemann Rosenkilde, whom he praises for his ability to portray being drunk.

In the last of the four essays, Søren Kierkegaard praises the opera singer, baritone Jørgen Christian Hansen, for his ability to interpret the lyrics of the peasant girl Zerlina's meeting with him in the role of the seducer Don Juan in Mozart's opera "Don Giovanni".

Søren Kierkegaard's four essays on the philosophy of theater are edited by mag.art. Jens Staubrand, who has also selected the book's pictures and written the comments on them.
